

Promote Your GAC Accredited Program

Academic degree programs accredited by the Global Accreditation Center for Project Management Education Programs (GAC) are members of a select group that embraces and promotes the discipline of project management. GAC accreditation confirms that an institution's project management program has been carefully assessed and that its scale, scope, and quality meet comprehensive, global standards for accreditation. It makes a public statement about the deep commitment of the institution and its faculty to ongoing evaluation and continuous quality improvement.

GAC-accredited programs have access to a portal where they can find a number of resources to promote their accreditation, as well as to provide information to the community about the importance of project management. Programs can download:

- GAC accredited program logos in a number of formats and the GAC Usage Guidelines
- GAC videos for use in promoting your program
- Template press releases for announcing accreditation
- Other related collateral

The portal is only available to designated representatives from GAC-accredited programs.

To gain access to this link, or to learn more, please contact GAC staff at gac@pmi.org.