"Reframe Risk, Unlock Potential and Expand Possibilities: How Exceptional Leaders Harness the Potential in Themselves and Others"

Drawing on the latest research in leadership and neuroscience, plus interviews with some of the world's top change makers—past and present—Ms. Warrell will get to the heart of what undermines leadership effectiveness, sharing science-based strategies to:

- Engage people around a big "Why" that taps ingenuity and counters anxiety and complacency
- Act decisively amid uncertainty and ambiguity
- Identify blind spots and foster a risk-ready mind-set that is driven by purpose over pride
- Engage in the tough conversations that are too often avoided
- Create rituals that build resilience to stay "on purpose," thrive under pressure and fail forward faster

- Shigeki Asou, Director, PMI Japan Chapter
- Etsuko Mizui, PMP, Director, PMI Japan Chapter

The PMI Japan Chapter was established in 1998 as the only chapter in Japan. It has more than 4,400 members and is still growing every month. The chapter attributes its growth to continuing to provide its members with valuable services and meeting the needs of each member. The chapter offers various membership types, including individual member, corporate sponsor member and academic sponsor member. During this session, the chapter will discuss how it involves volunteer members and will share best practices for managing volunteer leaders to support a chapter.

Welcoming Remarks

- Anca Slușanschi, PMP, PMI Chapter Member Advisory Group (CMAG)

Closing Keynote Speaker: Andrew Grant

"Are You an Innovation Leader?"

How can leaders deal with the complexities and challenges of constant change? This keynote session includes a fascinating validated assessment and interactive exercises to help explore your unique Innovation Change Leadership profile (iCLi). Mr. Grant's latest research reveals how understanding individual, team and organisation "Paradoxical Innovation Orientations" (PIOs) can assist with fueling innovation. In this session, you will learn how to manage the dynamic tension between the need for exploration and preservation, to demonstrate how to lead teams so they are propelled forward rather than ripped apart. You will be shown how to become an ambidextrous innovation leader. Drawing from research with thousands of survey responses, multiple interviews with heads of innovation and a deep-dive immersion into one organisation over two years, the session will reveal how successful leaders can fuel sustainable development.

Andrew Grant

Closing Remarks

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT UNITS (PDUs)

PMI's Continuing Certification Requirements (CCR) programme supports the ongoing professional development of PMI credential holders. To meet the requirements of the CCR programme, you must participate in activities that earn you professional development units (PDUs). PDUs are measuring units that quantify approved learning and professional development activities. To be eligible for PDUs, the activity must be related to project management topics that are substantially consistent with the Knowledge Areas and Process Groups outlined in A Guide to the Project Management Body of Knowledge (PMBOK® Guide). Many—but not all—of the sessions at the LIM qualify for PDUs. Please check the PDU information provided with each session in the pages of this journal. You can find out more about PDUs in the CCR section of your respective credential handbook.

PMI will automatically register professional development units, or PDUs, for PMI certification and credential holders attending the PMI® Leadership Institute Meeting 2019—Asia Pacific. This will be done through scanning your Smart Badge at each PDU-generating event (as listed below). When you scan in prior to a session, the system will record your attendance at the session and automatically record the appropriate amount of PDUs in the Continuing Certification Requirements System (CCRS).

It is your responsibility as an attendee to ensure your badge has been scanned if you want your PDUs recorded.

Upon the completion of this Leadership Institute Meeting, all PDUs scanned will be uploaded and recorded in the CCRS. Approximately two weeks after the completion of this event, we are requesting that each attendee log in to the system at ccrs.pmi.org and verify that his or her record accurately reflects the PDUs earned at this meeting.
